

Wrapping Paper

Before You Begin: Your child may need more than one sheet of wrapping paper to fully wrap their gift. So, print or copy as many sheets of wrapping paper as you think they will need. ▽

- Help Your Kids Get Creative! Here Are Some Ideas:
- Have fun customizing the paper with your own color schemes
 - Add in new shapes and designs
 - Layer on tissue paper or use glitter or stickers

- You may want to pull together some materials, including:
- Washable crayons or markers
 - Glue or glue stick
 - Colored paper and/or tissue paper
 - Glitter, stickers or other fun materials
 - A safety scissors

Explore Early Math & Literacy:

While you're working with your child and helping them prepare their gift, you can also have some fun with early math and literacy.

Early Math:

- Have (or help) them count the number of snowflakes on each sheet. How many are there? Are there more or less than 5? More than 10?
- How many pieces of paper will they need to cover the whole box/gift? Work with them to experiment and see how to best connect the pieces of paper to wrap the gift.

Literacy:

- Have your child identify letters or words on the crayons or markers they use as they're coloring the paper.
- Have them create a card to go with the gift. If needed, help them think of a message to write in the card. Talk about how to spell the words, or review the letters in the words in their message.
